Fun Fact: While iced tea is a staple in the American South today, it first gained widespread popularity at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis. Reportedly, due to an exceptionally hot summer, fairgoers were not interested in hot tea, so a tea plantation owner named Richard Blechynden decided to serve it cold instead. This impromptu creation was a hit among the attendees, leading to the widespread popularity of iced tea in the United States, especially during warm weather.
